The most common fine art print sizes are A4, A3 and A2. However, if you line these sizes up visually on a wall, there is a sense of a missing step between A3 and A2 - that particular doubling in size seems much more than a single size step. A3+ is a non official size that effectively allows a more sensible stepping of sizes along this system.

This is making it way too complex. Since the borders with Super A3 don't work as precisely as you would like, you need to simply create a true 13x19 custom page size and print your centered 12x18 image on it - this is how I would do if my iPF 5100 didn't have the 13x19 (ANSI Super B) page size option.
