What does this excerpt mean? "Writing is a special and rather terrifying form of remembrance, I've discovered there is a totality to it that seems almost like rape. Perhaps I only feel that way because I've become a very old man (a thing that happened behind my own back, I sometimes feel), but I don't think so. I believe that the combination of pencil and memory creates a kind of ...

The reason Stephen King serialized "The Green Mile" was a deliberate response to fans who flipped to the end of his books, something his mother used to do. Publishing it in installments meant that fans would have to wait for the last installment to find out the ending. King wrote each one with its own miniature climax, but even he admitted he did not have a clue how the story would end.

He was a mouse in the Green Mile, that was named correspondingly. Everyone felt attached to him. When Percy nearly killed it to make a prisoner suffer because of it, John Coffey saved it. After his death, Paul Edgecomb took care of it in memory of John Coffey. 63 years have passed since then and he is still alive because of John's actions.

The Green Mile Flashcards | Quizlet

"The Green Mile" is mainly a graphic horror flick disturbing to endure. I divide it into three parts: ONE—yes as so many comments have already said, this film does vividly contrast good and evil, shows miracle healing power (within a twisted medium mind you) and talks interestingly about accountability to God on judgment day.
