So, the standards of the English language equate wisdom with knowledge (although if you were to ask most wise people, they would just laugh) and that a fool is another way to say, in politically correct language, "mentally challenged," although if you were to ask a wise person, he would again laugh.

The Wisdom of the Fool - Trevor Stone

A Fool For His Master No one is a self-made man or woman. Every person who has excelled and succeeded in their life has done so because they are teachable and are willing to have others come alongside them to be their mentor and guide. The wisest persons in the world are wise because they are also the most willing to learn.

Day 672 - A Fool for His Master - Wisdom Unplugged

A fool is someone who is unwise, lacks sense, and lacks judgement. Fools don't want to learn the truth. They laugh at the truth and turn their eyes away from the truth. Fools are wise in their own eyes failing to take in wisdom and advice, which will be their downfall.
